Electronic exchange of data: integrated and efficient

Optimize logistics and financial processes with SupplyOn WebEDI

Growing time and cost pressures demand an increase in the speed and efficiency of communication processes between business partners. It is thus necessary to replicate all processes in the value chain electronically – end-to-end and without media breaks.

SupplyOn's WebEDI solution offers a unique opportunity to electronically replicate the flow of information between your company and your customers, from the delivery instructions to delivery and payment of the goods. And all this is possible without the need to invest in an expensive, resource intensive IT infrastructure. All you need to exchange EDI messages quickly and easily via the Internet is a PC, a browser and an Internet connection. This offers a new perspective in particular to small and medium sized companies.

Your benefits at a glance:

- Faster communication processes
- More secure and reliable exchange of data without media breaks
- High level of information transparency
- Substantial decrease in administrative cost

Cost and time intensive sending of delivery instructions by fax or mail can be dispensed with. Media breaks in the exchange of information with your customer are eliminated. The data is available in an uniform format and can be downloaded for further internal processing. The layout is transparent and structured. This reduces queries and significantly speeds up the communication process.

SupplyOn WebEDI is an integrated solution that facilitates the smooth handling of your logistics and financial processes. It allows you to clearly structure the complex network of business relationships. You no longer need to deal with varied layouts and heterogeneous data formats, resulting in a significant cost benefit. Take advantage of the numerous benefits offered by SupplyOn WebEDI and make your company a more attractive business partner.
